THEN AND NOW: TWO PICTURES OF NEW MEXICO—DROUGHT MONITOR MAPS FROM JUNE 25, 2013 AND NOVEMBER 29, 2016

A Blast (literally) from the Past—
Do you remember living in a dust bowl?

1. You looked outside every morning to check to see if the sky was clear, cloudy or brown.
2. When you got your mail out of the mailbox, you had to shake all the dust off every envelope.
3. It would rain a little bit once in a while—just enough to turn the dust on your windshield into splotches of dried mud.
4. Your hair always looked fabulous if you were going for the “windswept” style.
5. When you put gas in your car you had to first clean off about an inch of dust on your gas cap.
6. You didn’t bother wiping your feet on your door mat—it just raised up more dust for you to track into the house.
7. Your face looked wonderful—you got free “micro abrasion” every time you went outside.
8. When you drove from Portales to Clovis it looked like a beach—all the vacant land had turned into sand dunes.
9. When a big dust storm came through you had to call in sick to work because you couldn’t see more than an inch in front of your nose and you couldn’t open your eyes anyway.
10. Talk about “true grit,” you could always taste tiny grains of sand in your mouth and teeth.
