New Mexico Facts and Trivia

Santa Fe is the highest capital city in the United States at 7,000 feet above sea level.

The province that was once Spanish New Mexico included all of present day New Mexico, most of Colorado and Arizona, and slices of Utah, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Wyoming. The Original American Territory of New Mexico that congress created in 1850 included all of New Mexico and Arizona plus parts of Colorado, Nevada, and Utah. The boundaries of present day New Mexico were drawn by congress in 1863 but New Mexico didn't become a state until 1912.

Lakes and Rivers make up only .002% of the state's total surface area. The lowest water-to-land ratio of all 50 states. Most of New Mexico's lakes are man-made reservoirs. A dam on the Rio Grande formed the Elephant Butte Reservoir the state's largest lake.

White Sands National Monument is a desert, not of sand, but of gleaming white gypsum crystals.

The Palace of Governors in Santa Fe, built in 1610, is one of the oldest public buildings in America.

More than 25,000 Anasazi sites have been identified in New Mexico by archeologists. The Anasazi, an amazing civilization who were the ancestors of the Pueblo, where around for 1300 years. Their great classical period lasted from 1100-1300 AD.

In some isolated villages, such as Truchas, Chimayo', and Coyote in north-central New Mexico, some descendants of Spanish conquistadors still speak a form of 16th century Spanish used no where else in the world today.

Currently, New Mexico is the only state with a facility that the Federal Aviation Administration has approved for testing drones.

New Mexico has two designated State Vegetables - Chile and frijoles. New Mexico also has an officially designated State Question -- "Red or green?" (referring to chile preference)

When Lew Wallace served as territorial Governor, he wrote the popular historical novel Ben-Hur. First published in 1880, it was made into a movie in 1959.

After WWII Los Alamos and Albuquerque had many new laboratories. Hundreds of highly educated Scientists and Engineers moved in the state. New Mexico soon had a higher percentage of people with Ph.D.s than any other state.

New Mexico has far more sheep and cattle than people. There are only about 12 people per square mile.

Since New Mexico's climate is so dry 3/4 of the roads are left unpaved. The roads don't wash away.

Many people are under the impression that a trip to New Mexico requires a U.S. passport. New Mexico is the only state in the Union that actually put "USA" on its license plates for the sake of identity.
